Frankfort Republican Women Form Township Assn.

The Frankfort Republican association was organized Monday evening at the Republican rally held in Hatch hall, Mokena. The meeting was very largely attended. Mrs. Wm. Semmler, precinct committee-woman of Mokena and Mrs. John Clark, precinct committee woman of Frankfort presided. All of the Republican county candidates and state candidates or their representatives were present and made brief remarks concerning their candidacy. Mrs. Ford June president of the Will County Republican Women's club gave a resume of the duties of the offices sought by each particular candidate also the salary connected with the same. They were allotted three minutes each for their speeches. Present State's Attorney James E. Burke who is seeking re-nomination set forth three of the outstanding accomplishments of his regime, namely: the prosecution and conviction and execution of the murderer in the Pansa case in Crete township; the abolishment of all slot machines in Will County, the prosecution of fraudulent voters and is waging a campaign for honest voters.

Master in Chancery Walter Herschbach of Will County spoke in behalf of Ralph E. Church, candidate for United States Senator. Chas. Schupp Chairman of the Republican Will County Central committee spoke in behalf of Dwight H. Green, Republican gubernatorial candidate. He showed that he was a great vote getter and demonstrated it in the mayoralty election in Chicago last spring. Mr. Shoop pointed out a series of reasons why Mr. Green was drafted as an outstanding and aggressive candidate for the governorship.

Attorney Albert H. Krusemark precinct committeeman of Frankfort spoke in behalf of Richard J. Lyons candidate for governor and C. Wayland Brooks, United States Senator. Mr. Krusemark stressed the point that the Democrats were planning to throw their support to Dwight H. Green at the primary because they felt positive they could defeat him in the election next fall, but were afraid Lyons if nominated, would be the next governor. Mr. Krusemark further pointed out the oft repeated statement of a Nash Kelly hook up in Green's campaign. He made a very impassioned plea for the support of the candidacy of both Mr. Lyons and Mr. Brooks. At the conclusion of the speeches the Frankfort Township Republican Women's association was organized with Mrs. Herbert Folkers as chairman of Frankfort and Mrs. Wm. Semmler for Mokena. Mrs. Ford June invited the newly formed association, the first of its kind in the rural sections of Will county, to join the county organization. As an entertainment feature the popular trio of the Mokena Civic association sang several selections.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served.

Lyons Points Out Great Tax Waste

Housewives and clubwomen gathered at Hotel Sherman to push their shopping bag crusade against the state sales tax on food, were warned last Saturday by Richard J. Lyons, Republican candidate for governor: "Don't be deceived by those who would try to tell you that the sales tax can not be taken off food without a constitutional amendment."

Women representing all the fifty Chicago wards and the thirty Cook county country townships had gathered to receive supplies of shopping bags from Mrs. Mabel Krutchoff, chairman of the women's division of the Cook County Republican Central Committee, and chairman of the Brooks-Lyons women's division for the county. The bags bear the legend: "Take the Sales Tax Off Food—Richard J. Lyons."

Lyons asserted that those who say that the sales tax is not taken off food unless it is taken off everything "are speaking with total disregard of the facts."

"I have pointed out repeatedly," Lyons said, "that the so-called 'sales tax' is, actually, not a sales tax at all, but an occupation tax: that is, a tax upon the privilege of doing business. It is up to the Legislature to decide which occupations shall be taxed."

"The present law is a tax upon the occupation of selling goods at retail. The way the law is written, no retailers can be exempted without violating the state constitution. But, there is nothing whatever to prevent the enactment of a new law, which would specify what occupations shall be taxed. In specifying these occupations the Legislature can omit the occupation of selling food at retail."

Lyons emphasized that, before he made removal of the sales tax a major plank in his platform last summer, he studied the law carefully, himself, and also consulted with prominent attorneys.

"Critics of my program pretend that removal of the sales tax on food will leave the state without funds for relief and old age pensions," Lyons remarked. "This charge, of course, is almost too absurd to answer, because all you have to do is look at the reports of the state department of finance, itself."

"These reports show that more than $81,500,000 in sales tax was collected in the last fiscal year, and that only $4,775,000 was used for relief. The rest—or more than $33,740,000 was used for an assortment of other purposes, including the reckless, shameful waste of the Democratic state administration—waste for which you pay every time you buy food."

"The 17,000,000 which is now collected annually as sales tax on food can be saved by businesslike administration at Springfield. It is not needed to provide for our needy and our aged."

"You and other Illinoisans paid more than $9,000,000 in sales tax last year on groceries, alone. You paid another $3,700,000 sales tax on meat and $1,600,000 on dairy products, including the milk that infants must have. In round numbers, you paid more than $700,000 on bakery goods, more than $400,000 on fruits and vegetables, more than $340,000 on delicatessen items and nearly $30,000 on general farm products."

Starts Collection Of Taxes Saturday

Geo. C. Mager, tax collector for Frankfort township has received his tax books and will be at the Frankfort State Bank to collect taxes on March 30; April 10, 13, 24 and 27; May 8, 11, 22, 25 and 31.

He will be at Mokena State Bank on April 3, 6, 17, and 20; May 1, 4, 15, 18, and 29.

They Wont Swing This Time

I read the prediction on March 14, in the Herald-News made by Mr. A. F. Schupp, our Republican County Chairman on the standing in Will County of our candidates for governor, Mr. Lyons and Mr. Green; according to Mr. Schupp sentiment is divided almost equally between Lyons and Green but by election time it would be 60-40 in favor of Green. The prediction is amusing to anyone who talks to the people every day and knows how the average voter is thinking. Now, Miss, Mrs. and Mr. Republican Voter, the time has come when we should stand on our own feet supported by our own spine in defense of our principles and not be influenced by money, but show our true American spirit by sponsoring those two great Americans, Richard J. Lyons for Governor and C. Wayland Brooks for U. S. Senator. Both men were born of humble parentage; they volunteered and gave all they had to the Stars and Stripes that democracy might live, the good Lord spared their lives in that cause that they might serve a greater cause; that of saving our American form of Government. They started this fight in Illinois 10 years ago carrying the Republican banner into every nook and corner of our great state. During all this time they have remained loyal to Americanism and the Republican party. They have carried the Republican banner for you and I at a time when others refused to try and are still carrying it with a greater determination than ever to WIN this fight for Americanism, so I feel that you and I owe our vote of appreciation to these two home boys in the April 9th primaries.

Francis J. Loughran has opened his campaign for the nomination for States Attorney. Mr. Loughran has been a faithful Democrat for over twenty years, during that time he has always been active and aggressive for the welfare of his party. He has been exceptionally successful as a trial lawyer, and it is imperative that the candidate seeking the office of States Attorney possess this qualification. Big PTA Event Around The Corner

It won't be many more days now until the big P. T. A. Carnival will be upon you, and you folks just can't imagine all the fun and tricks that "Rainbo Magician" has in store for everyone. The children will be trying all kinds of tricks for weeks afterward and believe me, the older people will be wondering how in the world he did some of those things.

The P.T.A. are very fortunate in having the services of Mr. Skinner of Joliet donated to us by the Rainbo Bread Company—and we are grateful to the company for their co-operation and willingness to help us make our carnival a huge success. There are going to be some fine door prizes, judging from the nice articles that have already come from various stores.

And, Oh! more news! The old "Fishing Pond" will be there too, and what swell fishing, rare fish, to be sure but there's a bite guaranteed with every piece of bait upon the end of a pole and line—believe it or not! So, we will be looking for the fisherman that can catch the biggest fish, at the carnival! Don't forget the date, March 30, 1940. Saturday, 5 p. m.

Food donations should be brought to the school Saturday afternoon, March 30. We are asking all parents to co-operate in this respect and help make our carnival a huge success. We thank you parents!

DEDICATE PALOS VILLAGE HALL THIS SATURDAY

Palos Park, smart suburban community and home of many new famous artists, writers, and political economists, will celebrate the dedication of a new $80,000 village hall with a day's festivities Saturday.

The hall replaces an old clubhouse which was built 37 years ago. The history of Palos dates back to 1835 when the first settlers made their homes in the hills. Mrs. Henry Munch, a resident, among her heirlooms has a land grant from the government to her grandfather, George Pettijohn, which was signed in 1839 by President Martin Van Buren. Old Spanish and French coins and weapons and relics of the early military and missionary expeditions have been found in Palos.

The new $12,000 Frankfort Village Hall will be thrown open for public inspection next Monday night when an open house will be held from 7 to 8. A dedication program had been figured on, but owing to Mayor George Sangmeister's political campaign there was no time to arrange for a program, so the opening of the new hall will be informal.

The fine new building houses the fire department, village board council room, police station, etc. The council room will be equipped with black walnut desks and chairs purchased from the Stateville furniture factory.

The council room can and will be used for community gatherings. A kitchen is also being equipped. The fine new hall is a big credit to Frankfort and its live-wire board and citizens.

It has been the home of the late

Lorado Taft, sculptor; Sven Svensen, noted painter; Sherwood Anderson, writer; Thorstein Veblen, political economist; Donald Richberg, and others.

The project for the new village hall began in July, 1938, and the corner stone was laid in November of that year. Work was completed last month. The building houses council chambers, police magistrate court, a library, public meeting hall and auditorium with a seating capacity of 600 which can be converted into a gymnasium, a dining room, a kitchen, two clubrooms, a cloakroom, showers, and washrooms.

A patriotic celebration will begin the festivities at 8 o'clock in the afternoon. A flag and map will be presented to the village by your county post, an auxiliary of the veterans or foreign wars, and will be accepted by Mayor George V. Aermanson. Capt. William Grace Jr., past department commander of the veterans, and Earl Southard, vice commander, will be guest speakers. Miss Louise Kriz will read a paper on "I Am an American" and Miss Dorothy Robson will be vocalist. Taking part on the program will be the Palos Junior Girls, the Palos Boy Scout troop, and the Lone Oak troop of the Girl Scouts.

Women Give Library The Palos Woman's club will present a permanently equipped library to the village at a ceremony at 4 o'clock. Speakers will be Mrs. Mary W. Crowley, the club president; Mrs. Arthur Lord, Mrs. Mary Moon, and Mrs. Lorado Taft. Refreshments will be served in the banquet rooms of the hall under the sponsorship of the Civic League.

Mrs. Crowley will be assisted in the presentation by the club officers, Mrs. Martin A. Olson, first vice president; Mrs. Donald M. Smith, second vice president; Mrs. A. M. Bressler, recording secretary; Mrs. Joel L. Collins, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Peter Wagner, treasurer, and members of the turnings purchasing committee, Mrs. J. W. Mahaffay, Mrs. George B. Ward and Mrs. Lord, chairman.

The Palos Park school, district 118, will take part in a musical, drill, and dancing program at 4:30 o'clock. Ellsworth J. Bechtold is principal of the school and Mrs. S. Furry is president of the Parent-Teacher association.

Mayor Aermanson will preside at the evening celebration at 7:30 o'clock. An invocation will be given by the Rev. C. A. Rawson, after which Mrs. E. F. Hyink will sing the "Star Spangled Banner," accompanied by Don Smith. Thomas Quinn will be master of ceremonies.

Speakers on the program will be Donald Richberg, Frank Wilson, and Charles E. Miner, Congressman Edward A. Kelly will dedicate the building. Selections will be sung by a choral group under the direction of Glenn Harding and Mrs. Lillian Itzel, associate director. The Rev. J. L. Rooney will say benediction at the close of the program. Social dancing will take up the remainder of the evening.

Guests expected at the evening program are United States Senators Scott W. Lucas and James M. Slatery; State Representative Arthur Bidwell, County Clerk Michael J. Flynn, County Board President Clayton F. Smith, and Sheriff John Toman. Officials of Worth, Orland, Blue Island, Lemont, Tinley Park, Oak Lawn, Chicago Ridge, Midlothian, Mokena, and Willow Springs will also be present.

Bressler, commissioner in charge of highways; Robert A. Firalyo, commissioner in charge of public safety; Emmet J. Flavin, attorney; Frank G. King, clerk, and Lester Mahaffay police magistrate.

'Sweet Smelling' Sam Houston Jones Faces Task in Debt-Ridden Louisiana

By ORRIN HARTMAN
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)
BATON ROUGE, LA.—Next May 14 a mild-mannered young lawyer from near the Texas border will take charge of Louisiana's monumental state capitol. From its cavernous halls will scatter the ghosts of 12 Long years.

Out front, in the hero's tomb they built after an assassin's bullet cut short his riotous career, cocky Huey Long will probably turn over in his grave.

Good or bad, Louisiana's new administration will at least be different. The young lawyer is named Sam Houston Jones, because Sam Houston is quite a hero out near the Texas line. The night Sam Jones beat Huey's young brother Earl in a bitter runoff primary, he kept a New Orleans victory celebration waiting. They found him praying in a Methodist church, the sort of thing you'd have expected from a medieval crusader.

Not a Bad Idea.

There are those who vow Louisiana needs a crusader. Some people also call Sam Jones the David who slew a modern Goliath, but 283,384 Louisianians who voted for him were probably just as much against the Long machine as they were for Sam Jones.

Nevertheless he is the flesh-and-blood symbol of a protest against the most amazing political machine America has ever seen. It dates back to 1915 when Huey Long was handling compensation cases for Louisiana lumber mill workers. The idea was something like this: Give everything to the poor at a cost of nothing to them, that is, share the wealth. But to accomplish this you need a kingdom, and to h—l with the expense.

Huey 'Upheld' the People.

In retrospect, now that only the memory remains, Louisianians are recalling Huey's career. They remember how he "upheld the rights of the people" as state railroad commissioner; how he was licked for the governorship in 1924 but came back to win in 1928; how through shrewd political maneuvering he became Louisiana's lord and master. Huey provided free school books. He packed the courts, attacked the corporations and built roads like the state had never seen before. And becoming cock-sure, he could boast: "There are not many people in the United States who are smarter than

GOVERNOR-DESIGNATE—Sam Jones, rated one of Louisiana's best orators, strikes a campaign pose. When Earl Long accused him of being "sweet smelling," Jones' men bought out the dime store perfume counters and thus created a campaign symbol.

I am, and none in Louisiana."

Still rising, he got elected United States senator but still controlled a puppet governor and legislature back home. In the national spotlight he became America's No. 1 buffoon and demagogue, filibustering in the senate, threatening to stop federal money from entering Louisiana, calling the President of the United States a liar.

Predicted Machine's Downfall.

And then they "got" the Kingfish—shot him to death—in the 33-story Baton Rouge statehouse which symbolized his stranglehold over Louisiana. He knew it was coming, and he also knew the Long machine couldn't last after his death. Of his lieutenants he said: "Half of them will be in jail after I die. They don't know how to handle this power which I've given them."

Huey was prophetic, but not until last summer did a crusading newspaper editor catch up with the Long crowd. The editor was old Jim Crown of the New Orleans States, whose photographer hid behind a bush to get libel-proof evidence of graft. The picture showed a state university truck being used to haul supplies for the new house of a Long henchman.

To Jim Crown's exploit can be traced the 200 odd indictments that followed; the resignation of Gov. Richard Leche and the ascendancy of Earl Long; the flight of graft-guilty Dr. James Monroe Smith, president of the state university who has since been convicted; the suicides of three henchmen; the frightened countenances of countless small fry politicians whose come-uppance now rests in Sam Jones' hands.

Faces Difficult Task.

After Mr. Jones left his prayer meeting in New Orleans on victory night, he told the crowd: "I promised to restore honesty and decency in Louisiana government, and anybody who knows Sam Jones knows that he keeps his word."

Governor Jones was speaking boldly, for tax reformers have pointed out the precarious condition of state finances. Twelve years of the Long machine have boosted the bonded debt from $12,000,000 to $200,000,000. Louisianians pay the highest auto license fee in the country and one of the highest gasoline taxes. They are burdened with sales tax tokens and some 25 other new taxes which Huey and his followers used to "soak the rich and share the wealth."

But the ledger is not entirely red, for Huey Long had done something else for Louisiana besides providing folk lore for generations to come. The magnificent state university, the statehouse, good roads and free bridges are assets which partly offset the huge debt.

Vows to 'Cleanse' State.

Sam Jones knows all this but it makes him no less critical of the Long machine. He insists that dictatorial laws must be abolished, that courts must be placed above reproach, and that schools must be revitalized. Says he: "A new day has dawned after a long night with foul things happening in the dark."

Census Grows Complex As Nation Gets Older

WASHINGTON.—Census taking was a simple job in the days of Washington, Adams and Madison.

The first census, taken during Washington's administration in 1790, required only the "names of heads of families; free white males of 16 years and up; free white males under 16; free white females; all other persons; slaves."

It wasn't until 1850 that persons more than 15 years old were first required to give their "profession, occupation or trade." At the same time a question was included on the value of real estate owned.

In 1860 was added a question on the value of personal estates. The question regarding the number of months a person has been employed during the year was first asked in 1880. In 1890 the census bureau became concerned about people "suffering from acute or chronic disease."

Bareira has 2,000 inhabitants, and was built in six months.

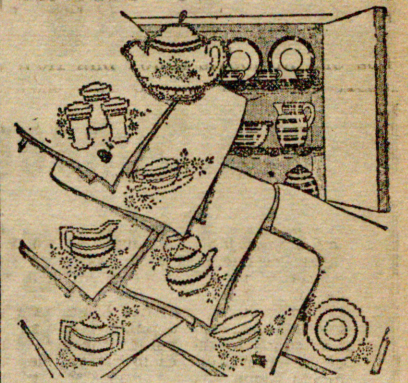

YOUTH

"THE best thing we can do for youth is to undertake to get back to real American thrift and economy in living—to get away from the idea that 'the Government owes us' one. We must get rid of the idea that youth and its elders too prevalently have today, that this is a good government to live in because it is a good one to live on and off from."

—U. S. Representative C. A. Plumley.

So You Want to Be a Model? New York Tells What It Takes

NEW YORK.—Young ladies: If you're between 19 and 23 with a just-so figure and the knack of posing before a camera without appearing to do so, you may have the makings of a model.

The glamour profession which has attracted hundreds of small town girls to New York isn't what it's cracked up to be, say advertising men and photographers, but if a girl is good she may get a break.

Models fall roughly in two classes. First, the free-lancer who sells her wares at an average rate of $5 per hour and prefers to depend on one-time calls. She is the girl seen on billboards, in magazine ads and newspapers. If she is successful her income will usually range from $50 to $150 a week, but not for many years.

Some Are Manikins.

The other classification is the fashion manikin who prefers a small but steady income modeling dresses in retail stores. Her figure is apt to be better than the free-lance model, but her face will be less "photogenic."

Even the free-lance photographic models are commonly divided into several classes. The fashion model is the "glamour girl" who seldom smiles, is a little too thin and can wear clothes with indifference. Another type is the "all-American girl" who is deliciously pretty and vivacious, who smiles over her cooling drink from the billboard or frowns over a headache.

They Need All Types.

Another type is the older, more mature models who pin diapers on babies, pose as happy newlyweds and greet their husbands at night. Still a fourth is the character model, ranging from small youngsters to spinsters.

The average model in New York is 23 years old. Her measurements will be: height, 5 feet, 7 inches; bust, 34; waist, 25; hips, 35, and shoe size, 5A. Another type, the "cute" model, has a bust measurement of 32; waist, 23; hips, 34, and size 3½A shoe.

U. S. Drafts Mars Men To Fight Forest Fires

WASHINGTON.—If you see a strange figure parachuting into one of our national forests this summer, it won't necessarily be a man from Mars. More likely it's a "smoke jumper," one of Uncle Sam's new forest fire fighters being placed into service this year.

The "fire jumpers" wear a special two-piece suit of strong duck, with trousers reaching high above the natural waistline.

THE STORY THUS FAR

Captain Carl Norwood has been sent from his native England to the Kadur River district in India, along with his indispensable manservant, Moses O'Leary, soldier of fortune. Norwood's job is to survey the district to determine whether a valuable secret diamond mine belongs to the temple priests or to the ruler, the Maharajah of Kadur. Norwood calls on the British Residency to pay his initial respects. On his way he catches a glimpse of two women in a palace carriage, one of whom is young and beautiful. The other woman he knows to be the Maharanees of Kadur. O'Leary later tells him that the young woman is an American girl named Lynn Harding, who with her aunt, Mrs. Deborah Harding, is a guest at the palace. On a sightseeing tour Mrs. Harding sprains an ankle, and sends to the palace for aid. Prince Rundhia, handsome, spoiled nephew of the rulers, comes to her rescue, and takes her back to the palace where he meets Lynn. At a banquet that night in the palace, attended by Captain Norwood, Mrs. Harding takes one of the native doctor's pills, and becomes violently ill. She is placed in bed and arrangements are made for Lynn to move out of the quarters with her aunt and stay with the Maharanees. That evening Prince Rundhia attempts to make love to Lynn. She is unwilling to listen to him, and at the crucial moment Norwood appears on the scene, much to Rundhia's disgust. O'Leary has located the secret entrance to the diamond mine which is being worked by the temple priests. He takes Norwood to the mine, where death is narrowly averted when a live cobra is thrown in Norwood's face. Later Norwood visits the Brahmin priests, one of whom slyly slips a packet of diamonds in his pocket, unknown to Norwood. They are intended as a bribe.

CHAPTER VI—Continued

The Resident was in his office, reasonably civil, but he frowned when Norwood told him about the palace supper.

"You met the Hardings, I suppose? What did you make of them?"

"Tourists. Beautiful niece. Terrible aunt. I gathered, without being told, that the aunt has money."

"Rundhia show up? Did you notice anything suggestive of the possibility of scandal?"

"I thought the niece a damned nice girl, sir. A bit romantic."

"Any conversation with the Maharajah?"

"Yes. I was alone with him until midnight. He showed me all the documents that he seems to think bear on his claim to own that temple property. He seems very anxious to avoid a lawsuit, and it isn't difficult to guess why, though I'm not a lawyer. He showed me nothing that even half persuaded me he has a case against the priests. Of course, we'll know more when we've run the survey. But as far as I've gone, I should say the priests have a walk-over."

"You sound prejudiced."

"I haven't a trace of prejudice, sir, one way or the other."

"Why not reserve your opinion? Are you off now to call on the Maharajah?"

"Yes. I'm a bit early, but I have something to do on the way."

"Very well. Keep me posted."

CHAPTER VII

Norwood left his horse in charge of the sals at the palace front gate. He intended to return and ride up the long drive to the front door for his formal call on the Maharajah. But the footpath to the guesthouse was shorter than the winding carriage-road, so he walked, to leave the iodine for Mrs. Harding. On the way he saw Lynn and Rundhia.

Lynn was no longer in riding breeches. She looked delicious in a frock of Nile-green print and a wide leghorn hat. Norwood wasn't sure, but he suspected she knew she could be seen from the guesthouse veranda, and that Rundhia was laughing. Suddenly Rundhia snatched her hat off, used it as a shield to hide behind, caught her in his arms and kissed her. It was no fool of a kiss. It was an experience. Lynn did make a show of resistance. She struggled free and recovered her hat.

Norwood's view of it, against the background of the leghorn hat, made him set his jaw. But he relaxed it again and smiled, a bit grimly, a bit maliciously. From the opposite direction he had heard what sounded like an oath, although it was nothing worse than the well-bred, almost inarticulately gurgled word: "Hussy!"

Aunt Deborah Harding had also seen that lingering and only laughingly resisted kiss.

Aunt was on the screened veranda, propped on pillows, on a reed chaise longue, with a table beside her. A native servant was just in the act of removing a tray of breakfast things.

"May I approach," asked Norwood, "or are you purdah?"

"Who is it? I can't see you. Oh, yes, Captain Norwood, come in if you can bear the sight of me. I should look presentable. I never had so many women in all my life to push and pull me about. This is my second attempt at a meal this morning. You'll have to run away if I can't keep it down. What has brought you, pray, at this hour?"

He had forgotten the iodine. "Thought I'd ask how you're coming along."

"Will you bring my niece here? She's beyond those trees, talking to someone. I want her to come here and talk to me. Will you tell her I said so, and please don't take no for an answer."

Norwood strolled across the lawn, tapping his boots with a riding whip. He coughed a couple of times. By the time he had peered around the trees, Lynn and Rundhia were seated opposite each other on wicker-work chairs. Lynn seemed self-conscious. Rundhia looked venomously sly; he offered Norwood no greeting whatever.

"I happened to be calling on your aunt," said Norwood, "and she asked me to say that she wants to see you."

Lynn looked dubious: "What sort of mood is she in?"

"Very polite to me," said Norwood.

"That's a danger signal. She can't be polite to one person at a time. I think I won't go."

"You will have to pardon me," said Norwood, "but I agreed to bring you."

"You always do what you say you will?"

"Yes," he looked straight at Rundhia, who ignored him.

"Prince Rundhia," said Lynn, "is going to show me the jewel room."

"Is he?" said Norwood.

Rundhia winced noticeably: "Perhaps you'd better go," he said to Lynn.

"There's lots of time. She'll have her tantrum out, and you can meet me later."

Lynn compared them, as clearly as if she had said it aloud. Her

"Write a letter, why don't you?"

smile was a bit forced when her eyes met Norwood's:

"Do you always order people?" she demanded. "Don't you ever say please?"

He laughed. "I can't kneel. Breeches too tight."

"What will you do if I won't come?"

"Scream," he answered.

"I dare you."

"Tuesday is my day for screaming. Are you game to wait here until Tuesday?"

"No. I'm coming with you." She glanced at Rundhia: "You'll excuse us?"

"I excuse you," he answered.

Norwood looked so comfortless that Lynn noticed it:

"What are you worried about?"

"Oh, nothing. I was wondering what your aunt eats."

She laughed at him. "Liar! That's the very first time you haven't spoken like a polished rascal."

"I told part of the truth. I am worried about you."

"You needn't be. I'm all right."

She ran forward to speak to her aunt. The tray of breakfast things was being carried out by a palace servant. Norwood stopped the man, inspected the tray, and selected a piece of toast. He looked for something to wrap it in. That reminded him.

He groped in his left-hand pocket for the iodine, tore off half the paper in which Stoddard had wrapped the bottle, stuffed the untidy package back, wrapped the toast in the torn-off paper and put that into his right-hand pocket.

"I'm expected at the palace, so I can't stay, Mrs. Harding. I brought you some fresh iodine, in case the doctor's stuff is pretty ancient, as sometimes happens."

He plunged his hand into his tunic pocket and Lynn came to the screen door to receive the bottle. He looked at her, groping with his left hand, trying to pull out the bottle without the untidy paper; but a piece of string, tied with one of Stoddard's knots, prevented. So he pulled out the disgraceful package with a quick smile of apology.

"Hello," said Lynn, "you've dropped something."

He stooped, picked up what lay at his feet but didn't recognize it. It was a quite small black paper envelope.

"I saw it fall from your pocket," said Lynn.

He opened it. It contained a neatly folded paper of diamonds. Nine large, clear white brilliants shone in the sun. He scowled at them and stuffed the package back into his pocket, evidently upset. He appeared to hope that Lynn hadn't seen the diamonds. He seemed about to mention them, but changed his mind. Lynn thought he seemed suspicious of her. Then suddenly:

"Excuse me, won't you?"

He walked away. Lynn's eyes followed, wondering. He looked like a man who has been hit hard and is trying not to show it.

"Lynn," said her aunt's voice.

"Yes, Aunt."

"Come here!"

Lynn faced about: "Aunt Deborah! I have seen someone staring at what he dreaded. Or it seemed to me so."

"Lynn, please rearrange my pillows."

It was not Aunt's cultured, conventional voice but the hard, unsympathetic one in which she almost always commanded attention to her comfort as a prelude to the luxury of an explosion of temper.

Two palace women, loaned by the Maharanees, had been fussing with the pillows less than five minutes before. Lynn rearranged them. She waited. Her silence offered the old termagant no opening, so Aunt Harding abandoned her usual gradual style of attack. She exploded:

"Don't dare to speak to me, you sullied creature, until you have washed your mouth! There is soap and water in the bedroom."

"Aunt!"

"Wash your mouth this minute! I saw you—permitting yourself to be kissed by Prince Rundhia!"

"Aunt, I'm no longer five! Aren't you forgetting—"

"To my humiliation I remember too much! You are old enough at least to try to keep up an appearance of decency."

"Aunt, there's no harm in a kiss after breakfast! It's kisses after midnight that—"

"Don't you dare to try to justify your grossness! Even your graceless father had enough sense of his social position to keep his indecencies out of sight!"

"Aunt!"

"Don't 'aunt' me! You inherit your father's wantonness."

"I never knew him," Lynn answered. "I only know what you and other people have told me. Others seem to have admired him. Wasn't he merry and brave and generous? Would he have endured your injustice? I have had to. For seventeen years. Aunt, I am very near the end of endurance. I knew you were looking. That is why I let Rundhia kiss me."

Lynn repeated: "I kissed Prince Rundhia, in a spirit of fun and partly to defy you."

"Fun indeed! Vulgar, suggestive impropriety, with an Indian prince whose immorality is notorious! Whether or not I disinherit you will depend—"

Lynn's rebellion flared to its inevitable climax. She interrupted: "Disinherit me now, if you please! Do it now, Aunt. I have made my last submission to your cruel money! You have educated me so that I haven't one chance in a thousand to earn a living. God knows what I can do. But I will find something. I accept the odds. I will make a go of it somehow."

Aunt's stare was skeptical, scornful. Lynn turned away.

"Where are you off to now?"

"To the palace. The Maharanees is human. Perhaps she and I can find something to laugh at."

"Very well, Lynn. All your clothes were removed to the palace last night, against my wishes. Go and pack them. If it kills me, we are taking the first boat home, and you may say so to the Maharanees. You may tell her why. If you don't, I will."

"And if you don't," Lynn answered, "the palace women will! They have been listening through the bedroom window. So if you want to get the first malicious word in, you had better be quick! Write a letter, why don't you? I assure you I won't discuss it."

She picked up her tennis racket and unscrewed the frame. It was a hardly conscious gesture: it was much too hot for tennis. She walked out through the screen door, carrying the racket.

As she approached the palace front door, she saw Norwood's horse near the portico. She recognized Norwood's sals, squatting down under the horse's nose, half asleep, instead of flicking flies off the horse as he should.

Then she saw Rundhia. He had been watching for her. One could tell that by his manner. He looked astonishingly handsome in a gray suit of some thin material and a gray silk turban.

"Tennis?" he asked. "In this heat?"

"No. Tantrum! I'm so angry I could kill."

"Don't kill me, Lynn. I'm important. Tell me instead."

Lynn used the racket as if she were returning one of Rundhia's serves. "Would you tell me the truth?"

He grinned. "Well, almost. Who can be in love and tell the whole truth? I will lie to you, of course, about my character. But I will tell the truth about yours! You're a lovely, inspiring, challenging fact, Lynn Harding. You're an event."

"I feel like a skeleton in my own dark closet," she retorted, and Rundhia laughed.

"Come and I'll show you the treasures. Drive away the very memory of Aunt!"

All the way up the palace stairs and along the ancient corridor, Rundhia chattered gaily. Lynn answered in monosyllables, perfectly aware that Rundhia was talking to divert attention from his motive.

"Beauty and the beast!" said Rundhia.

"Bromide! Rundhia, you look like secrets in a suave disguise."

"My very inmost heart," he answered, "is an open book. Can't you read it?"

"I don't want to."

He kept his distance. That sinuous right arm of his behaved itself. He walked ahead of her through the narrow anteroom, where two turbaned guards salaamed respectfully. Rundhia spoke to one of the guards, who switched on the electric light in the treasure room. The masonry wall was ten feet thick; the door a foot thick. The guard closed the door behind them and opened an eyehole. Lynn could see the guard's eyes.

There was a long teak table between her and Rundhia, loaded with golden and jeweled ornaments: embossed golden shields, scimitars in gold sheaths, scores of objects such as are carried in procession by the servants of an oriental throne. Electric light shone within lanterns, suspended on chains from the ancient beams. At the far end of the room, on the right, was a huge glass case, in which the famous Kadur diamonds sparkled, stealing color from the jeweled lanterns.

New Method Preserves Plants, Insects in Natural Colors

Two methods of preserving indefinitely in their natural colors such agricultural specimens as leaves, flowers, fruits, seeds, insects, and other biological material have been developed by chemists of the United States department of agriculture. The processes, while supplementing each other, have different fields of application—one for dried and the other for fresh material.

In the method studied by Dr. Charles E. Sando, specimens are suspended and embedded in methacrylate, a crystal-clear plastic similar to materials used in making nonshatterable airplane windows. In this process, the specimens must be dehydrated or dried out to prevent moisture from clouding the glass-like plastic material. They may be air-dried or dehydrated by use of alcohol or ether.

Corn and other grains or seeds, insects, or anything that does not lose its color or shape with drying, may be preserved by this method, possibly only under controlled laboratory conditions. Once the plastic sets it can be machined and polished to a high luster so that the specimen may be viewed from any angle without distortion. The largest est mount prepared so far is an ear of hybrid corn.

The other method, developed by G. R. Fessenden, is a chemical process for treating fresh plant material in such a way as to toughen the tissues and set the natural color. The natural beauty of flowers, or the exact appearance of either healthy or diseased leaves, can be preserved by immersion in specially formulated water-removing syrups. Each plant species requires an individual treatment which has to be worked out from seven general types of formulas.

The old method of preserving botanical specimens—pressing and drying—was unsatisfactory because of loss of color and the fact they were easily destroyed by handling or by insects or mold. Specimens preserved by this new method are sealed between sheets of cellulose film so as to be protected from damage.

Due to the expected permanence of specimens preserved by either method, excellent records of both healthy and abnormal plants and insects may be made available for scientific research, study, and exhibition.

THE CONTINUING TASK

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 28:16-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—Ye shall be witnesses unto me . . . unto the uttermost parts of the earth.—Acts 1:8.

World conquest! The dream of dictators and of national leaders down through the ages is to be accomplished, for there is One who has the authority to claim such a place of leadership who will one day rule, for then "the kingdoms of this world" will have become "the kingdoms of our Lord, and of His Christ; and He shall reign for ever and ever" (Rev. 11:15). While we await His coming to take the throne are we to sit idly by? No indeed, for even now Christ has all authority and He has commissioned His followers to go out and to serve Him in all the world by making disciples in every nation.

I. The Obedient Disciples (vv. 16, 17).

The Lord never fails to keep His Word, but often His followers miss great blessing because they fail to keep their appointments with Him. He had told His disciples that after His resurrection He would meet them in Galilee, and we read that they met Him at the appointed place. One trembles to think of what they and we might have missed if they had failed to meet Him.

His promise to us is just as true and definite. "Where two or three are gathered in my name, there am I in the midst of them" (Matt. 18:20) applies to us today. If we meet Him at the appointed place, blessing will come to us and will flow out through us to all the world.

Observe that "some doubted," that is, they were perplexed and uncertain about the risen Saviour. If they persisted in their lack of faith we know that it must have shut them out of a great blessing, but at the same time it did not hinder the Lord's gracious ministry to His other disciples.

II. The All-Powerful Leader (v. 18).

Quietly and without any fanfare, Jesus announced that all power was given unto Him; or as the Revised Version more appropriately translates the word, "all authority." He does have all power, but He has more. He has the supreme authority which gives Him the right to rule over the entire creation, heaven and earth, spiritual as well as material.

No man in his right mind has ever laid claim to authority over even so much as the earth, but here is One who without hesitation or qualification declares that to Him has been given all authority in heaven as well as in earth, that is, over the entire creation. Surely it is God Himself who here speaks to us.

III. The Great Commission (vv. 19, 20a).

"It is the sublimest of all spectacles to see the risen Christ without money or army or state, charging this band of 500 men and women with world conquest and bringing them to believe it possible and to undertake it with serious passion and power. Pentecost is still to come, but dynamic faith rules on this mountain in Galilee" (Dr. A. T. Robertson).

Such faith and such a commission call for a worldwide mission. The church or individual without a worldwide missionary vision assuredly does not have the viewpoint of Christ. Observe also that it is an evangelistic mission. We are not called to entertain the world, nor primarily to improve the social order. Our business is to "make disciples," that is, true followers of Jesus Christ, which they can only become through accepting Him as Saviour and Lord.

Such a ministry will inevitably be a teaching ministry. "Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God" (Rom. 10:17). How foolish is the preacher or evangelist who fails to teach the Word of God. It is His appointed method which cannot fail. Christian baptism is also a vital part of the Great Commission. It was first practiced at Pentecost (Acts 2) and later in the Church (Acts 8 and 10).

IV. The Abiding Presence (v. 20b).

There is no other statement of fact (for it is more than a promise) anywhere or by anyone that can compare with the assurance of Christ that He is with His witnesses always, even unto the end of the age.

Consider first of all who is to be with us, namely, the Son of God, the risen Christ, the One with all authority in heaven and earth! Then note that He is to be with His disciples "always." How important that is, for as we well know, the inspiration of even the greatest human leader largely goes with him to the grave. The Lord Jesus, on the other hand, is with each one of His children always. What assurance that fact brings to every witness for Christ as he gives himself joyfully to the carrying out of the Great Commission!

Government By The People Must Come From The People

(Political Advertisement)

A government by the people must come from the people. The Kelly-Nash machine of Chicago and the Horner clique of Springfield are breaking the American system of government.

We welcome you to hear Dwight Green, the man who has so successfully destroyed rackets and fearlessly fought machine rule. He will be glad to see you in Frankfort, Saturday, March 30th from 3:50 p. m. to 4:10 p. m., and in Mokena from 4:25 p. m. to 4:45 p. m. Make sure to hear him at 7:30 p. m. the same evening at the Chamber of Commerce building in Joliet. This is to be one of the important meetings of the campaign. He has spoken very clearly on many issues. He is the "Racket Buster" of Illinois, what Dewey is to New York.

Dewey will give a platform talk in Joliet, Thursday, March 28 at 4:09 p. m. As District Attorney of New York, Dewey made history. He fearlessly prosecuted rackets that New York Democrats refused to expose. Republicans in Illinois are looking forward to Dwight Green as their leader. He does not make rash promises. He wants to go to Springfield to do a fair job for all—not special privileges to any group. In the mayoralty election in Chicago last year, Dwight Green received more votes than any other Republican has ever polled in a State or Local election in the City of Chicago. Such accomplishment commands respect.

The poll conducted by Small Business Men's League of Illinois was two to one for Green. A poll conducted by the University of Chicago political science department throughout the city of Chicago resulted in a lead of two to one for Green. The Chicago Daily News poll shows Green is receiving 68 per cent of the votes in the city of Chicago. The Daily Times shows Green is receiving 73 per cent of the votes in a state wide poll. It is very evident that Dwight Green is gaining ground wherever he has been. Come and hear him in Joliet. He is the Man Who Can Win in November.

Will Co., 4H Club Expects Big Year

With county reorganization of girls' 4-H club work under way at the present time, it looks as if this would be the biggest year in club work for Will County. Twelve clubs with 124 enrolled are just completing their winter club projects and organizing again for summer work. Three clubs did not carry winter work, but are now busy with summer plans, and two new clubs may be organized.

Mrs. Elsie Butler, district 4-H supervisor, and Mrs. Edith Huffman, Home Adviser, met with all 4-H leaders in the county on Wednesday, March 20 and made plans for the summer activities and projects, which include foods, clothing, and room improvement.

4-H Club work combines technical training in home economics with practical home experience and club activities. Experienced leaders guide the girls in their interests, and all of this is responsible for increased enrollment in the county, state, and nation from year to year.

As the calendar looks now, 4-H organization work will continue until June. It is open to any girl who desires to join, and any communities who do not have clubs but have at least five interested girls are urged to notify Mrs. Huffman, Home Adviser, at Joliet.

The next meeting will be at Mrs. Keres' with an exchange, so if you have some plant you would like to exchange for some other plant, bring it and see what you may be offered.

Mr. and Mrs. Keleher who are in California write of the wonderful Easter Sunrise service at the Rose Bowl which they attended:

"Darkness, then the first rays of Easter dawn as night blends into day, 60,000 came to the base of the Tower of Legends, in the beautiful memorial park to herald the Miracle of Christ's Resurrection. At sun rise, 300 white doves were released from the top of the Tower where a large illuminated cross hung high in the sky. Four hundred voices and the Philharmonic orchestra gave a beautiful program. 40,000 Easter lilies were banked before the platform."

Joliet Celebrates St. Patrick's Day Pete's Birthday

The following significant story on the birthday of Peter McCarthy of the Morning Star Mission appeared in the Joliet Labor Record last week:

Joliet will celebrate Sunday, not only because it is St. Patrick's Day, but it is also Pete McCarthy's birthday. Pete McCarthy, Joliet's good-will charity delegate, who holds his downtown office at the corner of Chicago and Van Buren streets in front of the First National Bank, has on this special occasion expressed himself in a few words that we thought we would put into writing.

The few words we would say will be a departure from the political news that seems to hold most of the interest today. These few words were gathered while visiting at Pete's spotlessly clean headquarters on Collins street, an additional credit to him.

"Pete" says he has been thirty years in same building and same firm. (Pete McCarthy's Mission is at 458 Collins St.) Never had to call police and never had a death in the building. Still have a sandwich in one hand and a Bible in the other. We do everything for nothing. The definition of love is giving. For God so loved the world that He gave His only son. Since November 1, every month including March we have given beds to over 600, molders, plumbers, machinists, cooks and more of all walks of life. We do everything for nothing in the name of the Master. The first years of this work was carried on by my own personal efforts. Gave three pieces of property, the old McCarthy estate and my home at 1320 Nicholson street, and if I had $7,000,000 I would put it all into the work. I am going away sometime and I would like to leave a two-legged monument. Some boy or girl that was sent home and fed. They are the greatest monuments in the world.

In our work we have sent over 2,500 wayward people to different parts of the country. Beds and transportation were given. The place for every boy and girl is home, no matter what condition the home is in.

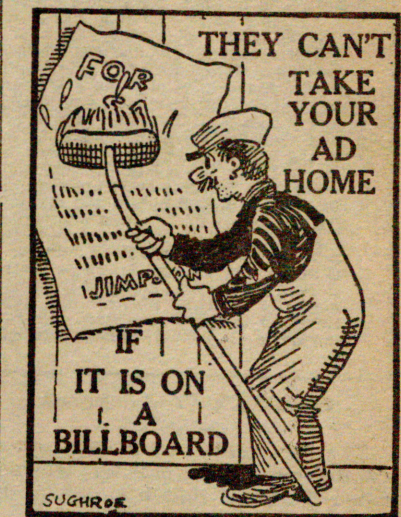

He believes that honest union organization is necessary and that it should be carried on with good judgment, without violence. Labor and the manufacturer should be closest of friends, because one cannot get along without the other. Common sense will make things better for everybody. He further says, he is a two-eyed Christian, Loves God and loves his Neighbor. So many people are one-eyed Christians, love only God and not their neighbor. Your neighbor is the one that is in need. Members of organized labor are being helped today by the mission, due a great deal to the financial chaos of the last few years. Previously union members could rely on local unions in the community for help. Pete has a very friendly and thankful feeling for the Community Chest, which, today is the main support of his mission. Joliet can justly be proud of Pete McCarthy and his work.

Light Weight
plus Power plus Traction in the amazing New
Ford Tractor with Ferguson System

• Forget your old notions about weight for power and weight for traction. The new Ford tractor with Ferguson system and wheel-less implements brings a new principle to the farm. Because it is so light, land packing is no longer a problem, yet it plows 28 inches wide!

Here the power-unit and the implement are one. Wheel-less plows, cultivators and other tillage tools can be put on or taken off in a few seconds. The implement is not only raised and lowered by a unique hydraulic mechanism, operated by a finger tip control, but is actually kept in the ground at any desired depth—automatically.

The four wheels of this all-purpose tractor hug the ground so that work can be done in all kinds of soil and on hills that even horses can't work. The new Ford tractor with Ferguson system is so light that it handles easier than an automobile on soft ground. It operates normally on only a gallon of fuel per hour. Come in and try this new farm equipment that does everything your horse can do. Does it better, cheaper, quicker, and with far less effort on your part.

You Get These Features
At No Extra Cost

Ferguson System of Hydraulic Controls • Pneumatic Tires • Self Starter • Power Take-Off • Governor • Battery and Generator • Oil-bath Air Cleaner • Muffler • Independent Brakes on Rear Wheels • Oil Filter • Adjustable Tread on Front and Rear Wheels (48" to 76").

The season of unreliable weather is here. With this thought, we remind you that there's nothing like the comfortable interior of a fine train to make travel a positive pleasure.

Rain or shine, in fair weather or foul, the train gets you there on time.

Rock Island main line trains are so comfortable, with air-conditioning, luxurious parlor-lounge cars, and reclining seat coaches and chair cars, the wise traveler always goes by rail.

Ralph E. Church Making Strong Race

(Political Advertisement)

RALPH E. CHURCH, candidate for the REPUBLICAN nomination for UNITED STATES SENATOR was named "AMERICA'S HARDEST WORKING CONGRESSMAN" by an unbiased critic long before he entered this year's primary. He has never missed a session, roll call or vote during his entire six year's service in Congress. Even throughout this campaign he is in Washington at work except for week-end trips back to Illinois. Such a man should and will not be denied by the Republican voters.

His entire public service has been in legislative work. Elected first to the Illinois assembly in 1916 without factional support, he was re-elected at eight successive elections with ever-increasing majorities. In 1930 he received the largest vote cast in the State for the office of State Representative. Having served in the legislature as Chairman of the Committee on Judicial Department and Practice and Chairman of the Elections Committee, and also as a ranking member of the Judiciary, Revenue and other important Committees, RALPH E. CHURCH has had long contact with, and intimate knowledge of, the legislative problems of the entire State. Significant of his uncompromising battle against inefficiency and graft in government and resultant high taxes, is the fact that MR. CHURCH forced the investigation of the Sanitary District Payroll which resulted in the now-famous trial.

As a reward for conspicuous legislative service, he was in 1934 elected to Congress from the large Tenth District, representing not only urban and suburban Chicago, but great Lake County with its myriad agricultural, dairy and industrial interests. Despite the huge 1936 Democratic landslide which gave Roosevelt the Tenth District by 15,000, Ralph E. Church was swept into office by a majority of 18,000. In 1938 his majority was 40,000.

MR. CHURCH for the last six years was the only Republican member elected from the ten Districts in Chicago and Lake County, and has thus had the distinction and responsibility of being the only Republican Congressman for four million people, or more than half the State of Illinois.

In Congress he was at once appointed to the important Naval Affairs Committee (now second ranking Republican member); and has served also with merit on the Committees on Patents, Elections and on Revision of the Laws. MR. CHURCH'S keen knowledge of foreign affairs was rewarded and supplemented last summer when he was appointed by Congress a delegate from the United States to the conference of the Interparliamentary Union at Oslo, Norway. Serving there as a naval expert on the International Committee for the Limitation of Naval Armaments, he gained further experience and background for the expert handling of international affairs in the United States Senate.

Vote for RALPH E. CHURCH for UNITED STATES SENATOR, an able, experienced, honest and industrious leader.

For Farm Kitchens

For the first time since the introduction of electric refrigeration, the farm kitchen now can have an electric refrigerator with equipment definitely designed to solve the problem of space for both normal food storage and safekeeping of large quantities of eggs, cream, meat and other farm items. Made by Frigidaire, this refrigerator is said to have all basic features of regular models and in addition is fitted with a set of special shelves which may be adjusted in a multitude of different combinations. One shelf combination shown above illustrates how proper family needs. The basket shown holds 15 dozen eggs, while the cream can has a five gallon capacity. Included in storage facilities is a double-width freezer in which meats may be kept for long periods at temperatures below freezing. Other low temperatures elsewhere in the food compartment supply correct conditions for standard meat storage and preservation of all other perishables. This farm model Frigidaire has a storage capacity of eight cubic feet.

Farmer Must Have 75c Corn To Get Paid For Work

"An Illinois grain farmer must have 75 cents a bushel for his corn and 50 cents a bushel for his oats if he is going to receive pay for his work," Orville L. Anderson, Republican candidate for congressman at large said in a keynote speech on agriculture at Rockford Wednesday night before the Winnebago County Scandinavian Society.

ORVILLE L. ANDERSON
Republican candidate representative in congress state-at-large

Mr. Anderson was the guest of the Scandinavian group at a rally attended by 1500 Republicans.

"Agriculture today is being made the victim of the most cockeyed economic system in the world by the New Deal," Mr. Anderson said. "When an administration imports $5,000,000,000 worth of agricultural products, exports only $3,000,000,000 worth of American products in seven years, and then worries about an American surplus of one billion bushels of corn alone, there is something wrong," the congressional candidate said in attacking the present farm program.

"In Illinois," he said "we have a picture of the federal government offering the same loan of 57 cents on corn raised 50 miles from the Chicago market as it offers a Dakota farmer on his corn raised 700 miles from market. There is no shot of freight costs. In effect a Dakota farmer receives in loans from the government the equivalent of 8 to 12 cents a bushel more for his corn than does an Illinois farmer. Dakota corn is raised on land worth $25 an acre, and Illinois corn is raised on land worth $150 an acre. And a great portion of that value lies in proximity to market."

Mr. Anderson attacked the present farm relief program as a permanent farm relief measure for its short sightedness in solving the great American problem. "Anyone knows," he said, "that the American government can't store up a billion bushels of corn a year indefinitely. Always there comes a day when a reckoning must be made. And under the present system that day will be a sorry one, if you can picture a surplus of 6 to 10 billion bushels of grain out of control. The ultimate answer to that system is 15 cents a bushel for corn, and farmers literally starve on that price."

Mr. Anderson urged, as the Republican solution of the farm problem, "a purely temporary program of price management and loan value as now prevails under the AAA and a permanent program of tariff protection and the building of an American market for American farm products."

"This in 1940 is one of the great planks in the Republican party's general program of revitalization of our American industrial and agricultural life. We are striving for an absolute protected market for American farm produce, new and steady employment for the city worker and a general increase in industrial production. There is a prosperity in America for all under a practical administration."

Mr. Anderson is the downstate candidate for congressman at large on the Republican ballot. Twelve other candidates are from Cook County.

Says Signs Point To A Complete Democratic Victory

Studied efforts of reactionaries to disparage the popularity of President Roosevelt are being exploded by the signed pledge cards being returned by scores of thousands to the Regular Democratic organization headquarters, Martin J. O'Brien, in charge of the pledge card campaign, declared today.

Smashing victory is also forecast, he said, for the organization candidates, U. S. Senator James M. Slattery, seeking renomination and reelection; Harry B. Hershey, outstanding leader and lawyer of Taylorville, and gubernatorial candidate, and the other state, county and municipal candidates.

"The people of Chicago and Cook all Illinois, and in fact, the entire nation, believe in President Roosevelt and his humanitarian endeavors to give all of the people a fuller, happier life, economic freedom and security from want," O'Brien said. "U. S. Senator James M. Slattery, Harry B. Hershey and the entire slate of regular Democratic candidates stand solidly for the constructive policies of President Roosevelt and Governor Henry Horner. That is why the voters will give these candidates an overwhelming victory on April 9."

Public Puts Stamp Of Approval On Hershey

When Harry B. Hershey, candidate for governor of Illinois on the regular Democratic ticket, finished his talk before more than 10,000 interested and spellbound listeners in Chicago recently, Mayor Edward J. Kelly, who was the chairman, cried out: "Well, how do you like him?"

Harry B. Hershey

A round of applause that literally shook the great North side armory was Mayor Kelly's answer. That demonstration was truly an indication that the public has put its stamp of approval on Hershey.

This spirit of acceptance and approval is meeting his every appearance as he travels from town to town through the state of Illinois.

Men who are traveling with Hershey bring back the word that he is gaining tremendous popularity so rapidly that the opposition already is showing signs of great concern and the word has gone out, "How can we stop him?"

Sen. James Slattery Stands Solidly For Constructive Politics

In the most spectacular finish ever witnessed in Cook County, the Regular Democratic Organization will bring the primary campaign to a close here next week with all signs pointing to a complete annihilation of the opposition.

The city's fifty wards, and the thirty country townships, are to be covered in a total of approximately 100 meetings spread over only six days.

In past campaigns, the windup, traditionally staged in Chicago and Cook County, has been described as a "whirlwind." This year comparatively speaking, it will be a cyclonic finish.

For U. S. Senator James M. Slattery; Harry B. Hershey, of Taylorville, gubernatorial candidate; Louie E. Lewis, Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes; John C. Martin, Homer Mat Adams, Harold G. Ward, T. V. Smith and Walter J. Orlikowski, it will be a merry-go-round.

Harold G. Ward

States Attorney Thomas J. Courtney and the other county and municipal judgeship candidates, who have been hitting the ball while the state candidates were downstate, will double up on their schedules.

Each of the headlines will be expected to address at least four big meetings every night from Monday, April 1 through Sunday, April 7. To cover the territory, the candidates will be divided into several caravans, perhaps four—one headed by U. S. Senator Slattery, one by Hershey, another by Louie E. Lewis, candidate for the nomination for lieutenant governor, and another by Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes.

Komarek Points To Career In Race For Recorder Of Deeds

Seeking the Republican nomination for Recorder of Deeds in the primary election, April 9, A. W. Komarek of Riverside this week pledged a program of honesty and economy to effect a reduction in expense in the office he seeks.

Mr. Komarek possesses an enviable record in the administration of the Sanitary District of Chicago from January of 1929 until his resignation March 10, 1932. During this time he increased the revenues collected and decreased the operating expense of that department so that he deposited $454,472.15 to the credit of Cook county taxpayers and the Sanitary District for the years 1929, 1930 and 1931 as compared to a deficit of $210,507.01 in 1927 and 1928.

His accomplishment in this reduction in the cost of government was brought about without depriving any employee of his job. Mr. Komarek's record was achieved solely through careful and efficient management and was accomplished during a period of tremendous governmental expenditure.

Mr. Komarek's candidacy has received the endorsement of the 30 elected Township committeemen. Regarding his public record as a guarantee of his unqualified opposition to public waste, graft and inefficiency, Mr. Komarek has also been endorsed by 42 of the 50 elected Chicago ward committeemen.

A leader in community and civic affairs and a successful business man in private life, Mr. Komarek is an aggressive exponent of a more equitable taxing method. His name will appear first on the ballot in the primaries on Tuesday, April 9.

Elzie W. Bertrand Enters Race For Clerk of Cir. Court

He has been associated with his father in the E. W. Bertrand home building contracting firm.

What Do You Know About American History and Tradition? Valuable Awards Offered for Essays on Question of the Day

The Illinois Garner for President committee announces that frank and interesting public opinion will be rewarded in a statewide contest to learn what the people of Illinois think of the third term for President issue.

Trips to Washington, D. C. for two persons—the winner and anyone he or she designates as a traveling companion, with possible personal presentation to both President Roosevelt and Vice-President Garner, constitutes the first award.

An all-expense trip to Philadelphia to view the historic landmarks of that city, together with tickets to the national Republican convention June 24 will be the second award.

Two seats to all sessions of the national Democratic convention at Chicago July 15 is the third major award. There will also be other prizes totaling $100 in cash.

In case of ties, duplicate awards will be made.

The contest is open to any man, woman, boy or girl in Illinois.

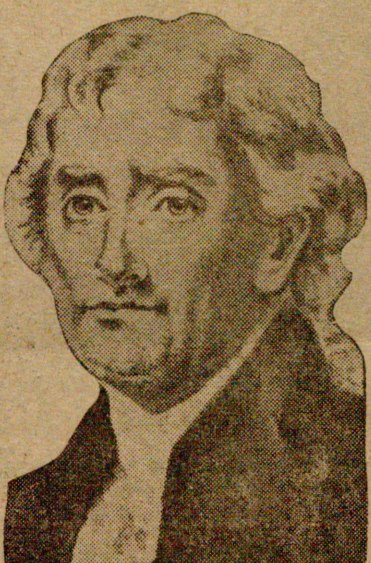

All you have to do is write briefly your own opinion to the following question:

ST. LOUIS—(Special)—Dr. Walter A. Maier, who preaches the gospel for the love of it and without compensation, promises to fulfill the Biblical admonition to "teach all nations."

His Lutheran Hour sermons are now heard each week over radio stations from New York to Shanghai and from Flin Flon in the Hudson Bay region to Quito, Ecuador. Stations in Panama, Puerto Rico and Manila are among the recent additions to the list, now numbering 170 regular and short-wave stations.

Ninety-five stations from New York to California comprise a special Lutheran Hour network carrying the broadcast every Sunday afternoon. The others are served by electrical transcriptions specially prepared in advance and sent to distant foreign stations by trans-oceanic clipper planes.

Frank Murphy losing out with New Dealers, Washington hears . . . Presidential primaries never a decisive factor.

(Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

WASHINGTON.—One of the most extraordinary deflations of a political idol that old-time Washington observers can remember is being reflected in New Dealers' estimate of Frank Murphy, now a justice of the Supreme court, before that attorney general, and practically a national figure while governor of Michigan, because of his attitude about the sit-down strikes in the automobile plants.

In 1938 Murphy was at the top of his popularity curve with New Dealers. His defeat, by a Republican, for re-election as governor was one of the bitterest blows the New Dealers had to take. Their wails about Murphy and Michigan were much worse, for example, than about the Republican sweep in Ohio and Pennsylvania, or the election of a G. O. P. executive in Oregon.

It was a menacing arrow pointing the return of reactionism, etc. When Murphy was made attorney general, there was rejoicing among the New Dealers, and bitter comments from the "Tories" about "lame duck appointments."

New Dealers Irritated.

But the moment Murphy took his first action in the department of justice there was a perceptible movement away from him by the New Dealers.

Irritation of the New Dealers with Murphy speedily became manifest in his conferences with newspaper men. The most left-minded of the writers, those in closest sympathy with Corcoran, Cohen and Jackson, began to attempt to prick the air of righteousness with which Murphy always surrounded himself on such occasions.

To listen to the self-admitted insiders now, Murphy had no choice about taking the Supreme court justiceship. It was that or get out, say those close to the White House janisaries.

But it looks as if Murphy has been losing out with other elements, while gaining no new friends.

Presidential Primaries.

In the early days of the Progressive movement, back in the days when Robert M. La Follette, father of the present senator, was the hero of many forward looking citizens, and in the days leading up to the nomination of Woodrow Wilson by the Democrats, considerable importance was attached to the idea of letting the voters decide as many important questions as possible.

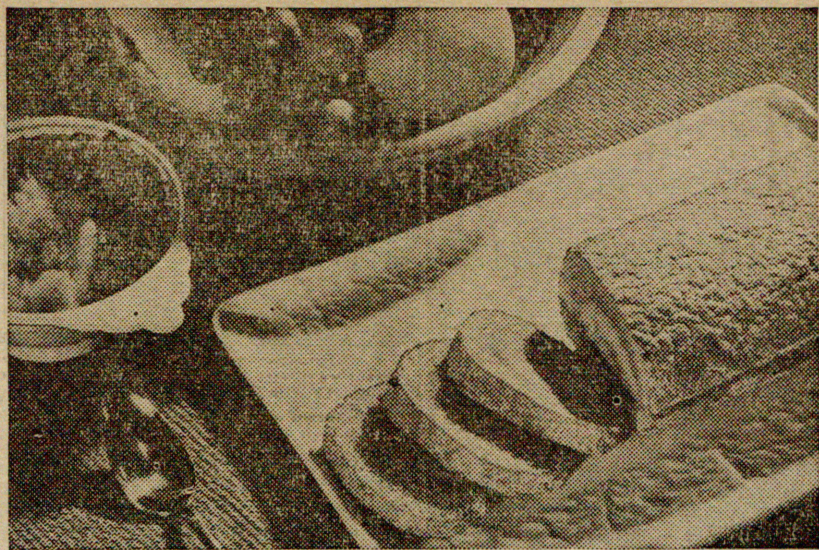

Nearly every Progressive, whether he were Democrat, Republican, or Socialist, for example, believed in the initiative, referendum and recall. The Progressives believed in the direct election of senators, instead of by the old plan laid down in the Constitution for their election by legislatures. Most of all, they believed in the nomination of candidates for President by preferential presidential primaries.

As a young and enthusiastic Progressive, a junior member of the staff of the "Baltimore Sun," the writer talked to many of the then political leaders of the Democratic party, and to veteran political writers from most of the great newspapers of the country, at the Baltimore convention in 1912, the one that nominated Woodrow Wilson after William Jennings Bryan jumped his own primary instructions—for Champ Clark—and turned the tide to Wilson.

Easy to Muddy Waters.

It ought to have been clear to us how easy it would be to muddy the waters, never better illustrated than in both the Democratic and Republican parties this year, 28 years later. But even in that year it so happens that Wilson, who won the nomination, lost most if not all of the primaries in which he faced Champ Clark, and Wilson's nomination was made possible only by the switch of delegates elected to vote for Clark to him.

Four years after Bryan jumped his state's primary instructions, Charles E. Hughes was nominated by the Republicans without manifesting any great strength in the primaries. Indeed until he was nominated no one could be quite sure he would accept. Four years after that, Hiram W. Johnson made the best showing in the primaries, defeating both Leonard Wood and Frank O. Lowden, for example, in the vital Michigan primary. No primaries had importantly demonstrated the strength of James M. Cox for the Democratic nomination the same year.

What Every Good Cook Should Know

There are certain principles of food preparation which every good cook follows, whether or not she's conscious of doing so, or understands the reasons on which they are based.

To be sure, every so often we find a recipe which seemingly contradicts every principle of cookery that has ever been formulated, and in spite of it, produces an excellent product. I suppose that's the proverbial exception that proves the rule! But in general, following definite rules of cookery produces the best results consistently.

There is, for example, a standard method for mixing cakes. Then there are revolutionary methods such as that which is used in the jiffy cake recipe below. But it's well to remember that the unusual method which, in one recipe, gives entirely satisfactory results, for another recipe may not work at all.

These are general rules (with an exception to prove every one, I do believe!) which the good cook follows as a matter of habit:

1. When mixing butter cakes or muffins, by the standard method, cream shortening, add sugar gradually, then egg yolks. Add sifted dry ingredients and liquid, alternately, beginning and ending with the dry ingredients.

2. Unless a recipe specifies otherwise, mix only until the ingredients are blended.

3. Cheese, egg and milk mixtures require a low temperature for cooking. Too high a temperature is likely to cause curdling.

4. When making pie crust, have the ingredients as cold as possible.

5. When egg white is added to a batter, it should be beaten until it is stiff but not dry, and folded lightly into the batter.

The recipes below will give you excellent results, in spite of the fact that they seem somewhat contradictory. But remember that the methods have been developed for these particular recipes, and they may not work if applied to any other.

Grandmother's Ginger Bread.

1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup shortening
1 cup molasses
2 1/2 cups flour
2 eggs (beaten)
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon cloves
1/2 teaspoon ginger
2 teaspoons soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup hot water

Sift together all dry ingredients including sugar. Combine eggs, molasses and hot water in which shortening has been melted and add to sifted mixture. Beat for 3 minutes. Bake in 350-degree oven for 45 minutes. Requires 9 by 9-inch pan.

Hot Water Pastry.

(Makes 1 pastry shell)
1/2 cup shortening
1/4 cup boiling water
1 1/2 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon baking powder

Place shortening in a warm bowl, pour boiling water over it, and cream thoroughly with a fork. Place flour (measured after sifting once), salt, and baking powder in flour sieve and sift gradually into the creamed shortening and water mixture. Mix thoroughly. Make up into a dough ball and chill thoroughly. Roll out and arrange in pie tin. Prick well. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees) for approximately 12 minutes.

Old Fashioned Jelly Roll.

5 eggs
1 cup sifted granulated sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt

Beat the eggs until thick and lemon-colored. Gradually beat in the

How true it is that the sauce can make or mar a dish, whether that dish is a cheese soufflé or a cottage pudding!

In this column next week Eleanor Howe will give you some of her own favorite recipes for sauces of many kinds—sharp tangy sauces for meat or fish, a smooth, mellow sauce to serve with soufflés and sauces for ice cream and pudding, too.

sifted sugar, and continue beating until the mixture is very fluffy. Add vanilla. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt, and fold into the first mixture. Line a shallow baking pan (about 10 by 16 by 1 inches) with greased waxed paper. Spread batter evenly in the pan and bake in a moderately hot oven (400 degrees) for 12 to 15 minutes. As soon as the cake is removed from the oven, turn it out on a towel which has been wrung out of warm water. Remove the paper, and trim off the crisp edges of the cake. Roll up in the towel. Let stand several minutes, then unroll and spread with filling. Roll again.

Custard Pie

2 cups milk
3 eggs
1/4 tablespoon salt
5 tablespoons sugar

Scald milk. Beat the eggs light, add sugar and salt, and mix carefully. Add scalded milk. Strain into a well-greased pie pan and bake in a slow oven (300 degrees Fahrenheit) for about 40 minutes, or until custard is firm. Bake a one-crust pastry shell in a second pie tin exactly the same size as that used for the custard pie. When the custard and baked pie shell are both thoroughly cooled, gently slip the custard pie into the pie shell just before serving. Note: This eliminates the soggy pie crust so often found in custard pies.

Jiffy Cake With Self Icing.

(Makes one 8-inch cake)

1/4 cup butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1/2 cup milk
1 teaspoon flavoring extract
1 1/2 cups flour (cake flour preferred)
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt

Soften the butter by creaming. Then add sugar, unbeaten eggs, milk, flavoring extract, and the dry ingredients which have been sifted together. With a rotary beater or electric mixer, beat for 2 to 3 minutes, or until the batter is light and very smooth. Pour into greased pan 8 by 8 by 2 inches square, and cover evenly with the following mixture:

1/2 cup sweet chocolate (grated)
1/2 cup nut meats (cut fine)
Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for 35 to 40 minutes.

Maple Syrup Muffins.

(Makes 12 muffins)

1 egg
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup maple syrup
1/4 cup butter (melted)
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt

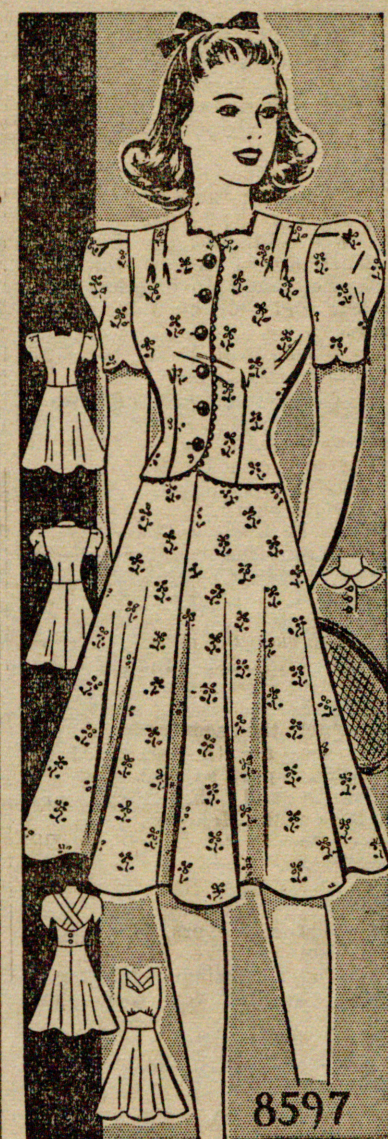

Beat egg until very light and blend with milk, syrup and melted butter. Sift dry ingredients and add to first mixture. Blend until the batter is smooth. Pour into greased muffin pans and bake in a moderately hot oven (400 degrees) for about 20 minutes.

in this truly money-saving pattern (8597). The tennis frock has a swing skirt, wide, inset belt and strap back. Add the pinch-waisted little jacket-blouse (the fitting is all by means of easy darts) and there's your suit-frock.

What's more, you can make the jacket-blouse two ways—with scalloped sleeves and neckline, and with a naive, round collar. So you can see what a help this clever pattern will be! Perfect for summertime in sports cottons, it will be very smart for right now in silk print, tie silk or flat crepe.

Pattern No. 8597 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 14 requires 2 1/2 yards of 39-inch material for frock; 1 1/2 yards for jacket-blouse; 3 yards trimming.

That Was Just It: They Were All on the Chase!

Jones had finally mustered up enough courage to approach his boss for an increase, but his request had been received with stony silence. The thought came to Jones that he had better strengthen his case.

"You see, sir, the reason I'm asking for more money is because three other companies are after me," he explained.

The boss surveyed Jones from head to foot for a moment, then smiled coldly.

"Indeed," he sneered. "And may I ask who they are?"

"Well, sir," replied Jones, "there's the gas company after me, and the coal company after me, and the company we got our furniture from."

Making Draperies? Some Style Hints!

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THAT lace curtains are in fashion again is news! This easy-to-make and easy-to-hang valance is something that many of you have been wanting. All the dimensions for cutting it are given here. The glass curtains are hung on the lower rod; the side drapes on the upper rod; and the valance is draped over knob holders screwed into the extreme upper corners of the window frames.

The color plan for this window began with the glazed chintz drapery material in tones of green, beige and golden yellow. The darkest green—a soft olive tone, was used in sateen to line the valance and make the tie-backs. The brass holders for the valance repeated the golden yellow. The cream glass curtains toned into the drapery background, and a plain olive green window shade was used.

NOTE: Mrs. Spears has prepared four booklets for our readers with illustrated directions for making 128 thrifty homemaking ideas. Each book contains an assortment of 32-pages of curtains; slip covers; rag rugs; toys; gifts and novelties for bazaars. Palos Library Has New Home

The Palos Park Public Library, a project started by the Palos Park Woman's club back in 1927, now has a new and permanent home.

The library was first suggested and provisions made for its establishment by Mrs. Lorado Taft, formerly a resident of Palos Park.

Mrs. Taft, a daughter of Mrs. Emily S. Bartlett, suggested that sale of effects of the old Bartlett home be held by the Palos Woman's club to create the fund. The sale was held in 1927 under the auspices of the committee formed for the purpose, consisting of Mrs. W. Thorpe, Mrs. A. M. Robertson, Mrs. Donald R. Richberg, Mrs. Irene S. Monroe, Mrs. S. Y. Patterson. The proceeds, amounting to several hundred dollars, were designated as the "Bartlett Memorial Fund" for use by the library.

The library was first established in 1936 and has occupied temporary quarters up to this time. It has now been moved to its permanent location in the new Palos Park village hall.

The formal dedication of the new Palos Park village hall, which will contain in addition to the library a spacious auditorium and gymnasium, council chamber and other facilities for recreation and entertainment, will be held March 30. The Palos Woman's club, as their part of these exercises beginning at 3:00 p. m., on that date, will present the library completely furnished to the village. The furnishings for the library, the foyer, and council chamber are being provided by the Palos Woman's club from other funds for this purpose.

Mrs. Harry W. Crowley, president, and the Executive Board members: Mrs. Martin A. Olsen, Mrs. Joel L. Collins, Mrs. Arthur R. Lord, Mrs. Alfred F. Pashley, Mrs. A. M. Bressler, Mrs. D. M. Smith, Mrs. Wm. James Twigg, Mrs. Irving, Mrs. Lee Lauderback, Mrs. Peter Wagner, Mrs. S. Y. Patterson, Mrs. R. Schofield, and Mrs. W. I. Massey, will make the presentation. Mrs. Lorado Taft will be guest of honor.

Mrs. Arthur R. Lord, Chairman of the Purchasing committee, assisted by Mrs. J. W. Mahaffey and Mrs. George B. Ward.

The formal dedication of the new building will include in addition to the exercises, a dance which will start at 9:30 p. m. The Palos Woman's club and other village organizations will take a nactive part in the day's festivities.

Primary Differences Set Aside

Primary differences among all elements of the Republican party have been set aside to sponsor the election of Hayes Kennedy, Joliet, and Harrison H. Robillard, Elmhurst, as delegates from the 11th congressional district to the Republican national convention, it was announced yesterday.

Each of the Republican county chairmen in Will, DuPage, Kane and McHenry counties, which together comprise the district, have endorsed Kennedy and Robillard. The chairmen have cast aside all differences in the gubernatorial contest in the harmony move for delegates. The opposing Dwight Green and Richard J. Lyons gubernatorial forces have announced a similar endorsement for Kennedy and Robillard.

The election of delegates having the confidence and support of the entire party has been advocated because of the importance of the Illinois delegation presenting a united front at the presidential convention, to nominate a presidential candidate who will lead the Republican party to victory in November.

Both Kennedy and Robillard have assured voters that their only interest at the convention will be to foster unity and strength to promote Republican victory on a platform that will be of essential benefit to the country as a whole and to the workmen, farmers and businessmen who are its people.
